

STORIES OF THE SUBCONTINENT

Gallery Espace held a preview of Paula Sengupta's solo exhibition 'Lv. Pony', a sequel to 'Rivers of Blood', which was exhibited in Mumbai in 2010. Lv. Pony addresses the conflicts, contradictions and complex politics that both bind and divide India, Pakistan and Bangladesh. The event was attended by the city art aficionados and artists including Mithu Sen, Vivan Sundaram and Atul Bhalla. Seen here (from left) are Paula Sengupta, Vivan Sundaram and Mithu Sen at the preview.

THROUGH THE LENS

Arcel presented JJ Valaya's Tasveer couture collection at the Lakmé Fashion Week Winter/Festive 2011. A brilliant photographer, JJ Valaya's collection, inspired by his skills behind the lens, was a frame-by-frame story of luxurious creations. Starting with a black and white collection and moving into sepia tones, followed by hand-stained naturals into a digital story, Valaya's very regal line of garments was a study in crafts, fabrics and embellishments. The show was held at the Grand Hyatt Ballroom in Delhi. Seen here is a model showcasing an outfit from the collection.

THE SPIRIT OF FREEDOM

An Independence Day carnival was held with great pomp at Epicentre, Gurgaon. It was attended by school children and Gurgaon residents who enjoyed the many exciting events and activities. The carnival, now in its third year, is a milestone in Gurgaon's cultural calendar. Children participated in painting competitions and pottery-making and enjoyed indoor games and even a bioscope. Seen here is a child at the painting competition.

LOOKING OUT FOR THE ELDERLY

The Golden Estates, a fully managed residential complex for senior citizens, organised an awareness symposium on Preventive Health Measures and Security of Senior Citizens at the India Habitat Centre. At the event, panellists spoke about how the elderly could be provided with an active, secure and dignified lifestyle. The attendees included Amit Vaidya, director-UCC care, Dr Gautam Dev Sood, geriatric care expert and UK Choudhary, additional commissioner of police, Delhi.
